Overall Usage Rights

Artwork

The class logo is for our class's 45th Reunion. This exhibit is with respect to our 45th Reunion memorability. I expect there are no issues here.

The other artwork is used by permission of the authors or is allowed as acceptable use.

Music

These recordings are all under copyright and used by permission. They are provided for personal non-commercial use. In particular, they may not be sold.

In greater detail, the various owners -- Joseph, Terry, and Stuart (NiaSounds) -- all gave permission for these recordings to be shared by Joseph, provided they are never sold. High Desert Everywhere may not be downloaded from the website. Joseph has the confirming email and TXT trails, as well as contemporaneous notes.

Joseph is sharing these songs via Princetoniana while protecting copyrights and prohibiting sales.

All performances are under copyright.

All songs other than High Desert Everywhere are out of copyright. Per https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Public_domain_in_the_United_States:

Every work first published before 1923 has been in the American public domain since 1998.

Streamable vs. Downloadable

Joseph secured permission to post the songs from Terry for those song for which Terry holds the copyrights. Joseph also confirmed the copyright and performance owners, as shown below.

Joseph confirmed Stuart is OK with High Desert Everywhere going up on the Princetoniana website, provided it is only streamable, but not downloadable.

Because we are not able to easily prevent downloads of the associated mp3 files, we link to the YouTube version of High Desert Everywhere for playback, but provide a live player for the other 4 songs on the website.
